

SIX LODGES
TO TAKE PART

In the Union Memorial Services to be Held at Riverview Cemetery
Sunday.

LINE OF MARCH ARRANGED.

Three Bands.—Battalion, Flower Bearers and Lodge Members Will Join in Parade.

As previously announced, Union
Memorial services will be held Sunday afternoon by the Odd Fellows, Knights of Pythias, Modern Woodmen, Elks, Eagles and Red Men.

The six lodges will meet at their respective halls at 2:30 and will march to the corner of Second and Chestnut streets where they will assemble at 3 o'clock sharp.

They will form there for the parade with the Columbus band at the head.

The First Battalion of about 100 uniformed men will fall in behind the band and they will be followed by over 100 flower bearers from the different orders.

Then will come the Vallonia band followed by the members of all of the orders participating in the memorial services. They will march four abreast. The Seymour band will follow.

The line of march will be south on Chestnut to the end of the brick streets, countermarch on Chestnut to Second, east on Second to Ewing and north on Ewing to Riverview cemetery where the exercises will be held.
The latter will be under the auspices of the Knights of Pythias, that lodge arranging the program for the oc-casian.

After the exercises the graves of the deceased members of the six lodges will be decorated. There are over 100 such graves in the cemetery, 59 of them being graves of Knights of Pythias members.

The committee in charge of the ceremonies of the day has made the request that the members of the lodges and others participating, fall in line after the decoration of graves and march to the city in the order in which the procession to the cemetery is formed.

C. W. Burkhardt of the Woodmen, will be the grand marshal of the parade and his aids will be Ed Loertz of the Odd Fellows, Herman Bartlett of the Knights of Pythias, A. D. Shields of the Elks, Frank Smith of the Eagles, and Dr. B. S. Shinness of the Red Men.

The union memorial services have been successful in the past and if the weather is good Sunday, it is expected that the exercises will be largely attended.

has been in trouble so often that May-sentenced him to 30 days in jail. As

ONE MAN FINED

For Conducting Gambling Game.—
Others Fined For Gaming.

This morning Mayor Swope fined Charles Vogel $35 and costs for conducting a gambling game. Thomas Rail and Lorenzo Shotts were each fined $5 and costs for gaming. Rail paid his fine, Shotts stayed his and Vogel also promised to stay his.

The officers discovered that gambling had been going on in the rear of Vogel's barber shop on Jeffersonville avenue, while they were investigating another case.

Thursday evening a report was heard that some one had stolen or embezzled $5 at the Vogel shop. Mayor Swope, deputy prosecutor Kasting and Officer Byrne held an informal court of investigation last night and several witnesses were summoned. As a result Shotts was brought into court this morning, it being alleged that he had failed to return to the shop after going out to secure change for a $5 bill. However he claimed that the money or part of it was his and was due on a gambling debt. He made disclosures which resulted in the arrests and the fines mentioned above being assessed.

The officers have warrants for others who are charged with being in the game.

ARREST TODAY

Of Mrs. Mary A. Lloyd on Two Grand Jury Indictments.

Mrs. Mary A. Lloyd was arrested today by Deputy Sheriff Robertson on two grand jury indictments. The first is in two counts and charges the keeping of a house for the illegal sale of liquor and selling without license. The second is for enticing a female to house of ill fame. She appeared before Judge Shea and furnished bond for $500 on the first charge and $300 on the second. Conviction on the last charge under the new law provides for a prison sentence of from two to ten years and a heavy fine.

The grand jury investigation resulted from an inquiry made here by officials recently into a charge of provoke which Mrs. Lloyd had filed against Officer Thompson who had visited her house to inquire into a reported disturbance there.

Big Crowd.

The largest crowd of the week attended the carnival last night. Each of the seventeen shows did a good business and gave general satisfaction.

MUSIC LOVERS
GIVEN A TREAT

Concert By Miss Hannah Mills Of
This City, and Two Prominent Cincinnati Artists.

AN APPRECIATIVE AUDIENCE

Heard Program Which Was Given at Majestic Theatre Thursday Evening.

The College of Music of Cincinnati presented Miss Hannah Mills, soprano, of this city, Mr. James Harrod, tenor, and Mr. Thomas Griselle, pianist, of Cincinnati, in a concert at the Majestic theatre Thursday evening.

A large gathering of music lovers and friends of Miss Mills attended and they were rewarded by hearing a splendid and high-class musical program. The audience was thoroughly appreciative and showed a delight and an enjoyment of the various numbers by an enthusiasm which could not fail but be esteemed by the artists as some reward for their efforts.

While she has sung in concerts in Cincinnati, Oxford and other cities, it was Miss Mills' debut in concert here. Her friends were aware that she was a musician of ability, but they were greatly surprised and delighted at the remarkable talent which the program gave her an opportunity to display. She has a beautiful voice and sings with an ease and control and richness of tone that promise much for her success as a soloist.
Her voice is high soprano and ranges to high E flat above high C and her work last night showed the musical training she has received. She studied music at Oxford College and for the past two years has been in the College of Music in Cincinnati, with Mr. Harrod, being a student under Douglas Powell.

In the program last night the number which displayed her artistic musical talents and range of voice to the best advantage was the "Shadow Song" which is from the opera "Den-orah."

Following this number Miss Mills was presented with a beautiful boquet of roses.

Mr. Harrod and Mr. Griselle are both graduates of the College of Music and have already made some reputation in concert work.

The former is classed as a lyric tenor. He has a splendid voice and is considered one of the most promising young tenors in the country. A Cincinnati music critic declares that within a few years wonderful things may be expected of him. His work last night greatly pleased the audience and his expected rise in the musical world will be watched with interest by those who heard him. He will go to Europe the coming year to become a student of Jean De Reski.

Mr. Griselle, the pianist, came in for a full share of the appreciation and applause of the audience. His work furnished some of the greatest enjoyment of the evening for many. He, too, will go abroad soon and will study under Bussoni.

Miss Mills and Mr. Harrod sang several duets. Their voices blended remarkably well. The duet which was the last number on the program was one of the most delightful features of the evening's entertainment. The program was:

TOMMY CARTER

Is in Trouble at Bedford Again.—A Promise to be Good.

Tommy Carter, who was around Seymour for nearly a year and who left here a year or so ago, is in trouble at Bedford the second time.
The Bedford Democrat says:

Claiming that he had been doped
and swindled out of all of his money, Levi Doolan, Wednesday afternoon, filed an affidavit in Mayor Field's court charging Tommy Carter with operating a gaming house. Tommy was arrested and on his promise to go out of business and leave town, proceedings in the case were suspended until next Monday.

Carter had been conducting a soft drink place on North I street, which was raided some time ago as a blind tiger, but no case was made against Carter. Doolan told the mayor that he went into the place Wednesday and that soon afterward he was given a drink of whiskey that some one had gone out and got; that soon after swallowing the liquor he lost consciousness of what was going on about him, and that when he came to himself his money had all disappeared and he was given to understand that he had lost it gambling.
Whether it was at poker or craps, or some other game, Doolan says he is not able to say, as he has no recollection of having been in any kind of a game—unless it was a brace game.

WINDOM GOSS

Of This County on Way to Coronation
On Battleship Delaware.

Windom Goss, son of ex-Sheriff
Goss, is now on his way to England on the battleship Delaware and will be Jackson county's unofficial and only representative at the coronation of King George. He is in the U. S.
Navy and has the good fortune to be assigned to the Delaware.

The great battleship left the Brooklyn navy yard today.

It will be the biggest warship at the coronation of King George. It will represent the United States navy at the ceremonies in English waters, outclassing all the sea-fighters of other nations that will assemble there.

For three weeks the Delaware has been at the Brooklyn navy yard to be put in shape for the trip for which she is assigned. Her guns have been painted black and the hull has received a new coat of gray. The interior shines with white and light blue, while the quarters have been newly furnished. Rear Admiral Vreeland will occupy the Captain's quarters.

The Delaware is 518 feet long and has a speed of twenty-one knots. Her main batteries include ten twelve-inch guns. The fuel supply for her present trip includes 2,600 tons of coal and 400 barrels of oil, which will last until she returns to this side.

Heart to Heart
Talks.

By EDWIN A. NYE.

THE UPGOING OF HUMANS.

The world is growing better. Have you seen a glacier? If so you have wondered at its monstrous grinding power because you cannot see that it moves. But it does move. If you could put up some sort of a mark and come back later on you would be convinced.

So is the progress of humanity—slow, but sure.

Look over its track. A few centuries ago a majority of the men and women were slaves to a horde of petty tyrants. Now, save in some out of the way world corner, the crack of the slave driver's whip is never heard.

In the middle ages epidemics swept over Europe, destroying half the populations of communities. Now you seldom hear of the plague.

Once men and women were tortured and burned and hanged for religion's sake. Now, even in Turkey, there is tolerance and religious liberty.

Drunkenness? A hundred years ago the liquor habit was common among the best people. When the minister called the decanter was always on the sideboard.

Nowadays it is a disgrace to be drunken, and besottedness is largely confined to a low type of humans.

War? History is the story of garments rolled in blood. Today more important than the engine of peace—Corliss, Atlas, Westinghouse—and the white palace at the Hague stands for the fabled flags of battle.

Trusts? Greedy, criminal, they are less in their ruthless tyranny than the feudal lords who held the power of life and death over men and women.

And—note philanthropy. A hundred years ago the insane were chained like beasts in a cell, and prisons were veritable hells of torture, and hospitals, homes for the friendless and organized charities were unknown.

Philanthropy is the product of the last hundred years.

And, so you see, when you look backward over the weary way by which it has come the upward trend of struggling humans is plain.

It cannot stand still. It must go on. There is no place to stop this side of universal brotherhood.

You cannot stop the glacier with your puny hand. No more can you stop the steady oncoming of the race.

DEMANDS AN INQUIRY

Pennsylvania Miners Ask Congress to Look Into Acts of Deputies.

Washington, June 1.—Francis Feehan, president of the mine workers' union, startled the house committee on rules by statements in regard to conditions in the Westmoreland coal fields of Pennsylvania, where a strike has been in progress for a year. Feehan appeared before the committee in support of a bill introduced by Representative Wilson of Pennsylvania, calling for a congressional investigation of the situation.

Feehan told the committee that twenty miners had been killed by deputies since the strike began.

"Some of the men," he said, "were shot by deputies who followed them to their homes."

Thrown From a Carriage.

Princeton, Ind., June 1.—Absalom McClure, aged sixty-six, a wealthy farmer of Spurgin, Ind., while visiting at Fort Branch, near here, was thrown from his carriage and died in a few hours.

STORM TAKES DEADLY TOLL

Cleveland Helpless Under Flail of 60-Mile Gale.

ALL OVER IN FIVE MINUTES

Sudden Storm Swept the City and Harbor, Claiming Ten Lives of Persons Caught Helpless on the Lake, and Doing Damage in the City and Along Shore Estimated at More Than a Million Dollars.

Cleveland, O., June 1.—Ten dead, many missing, scores of injured and at least $1,000,000 property loss made the trail left by a five-minute storm that ripped and tore its way through the northern half of Ohio.

Cleveland lay helpless under the flail of a sixty-mile gale that scattered the shipping in the harbor, knocked buildings with it in its fury and twisted giant trees from their roots.

Seven were drowned in Lake Erie off Cleveland as the storm caught fishermen unawares, and imperiled the lives of yachtsmen and other people on the water. Three were drowned at Lorain, while more are missing both there and at Cleveland.

Not one block of the city missed its mark of the wrecking gale. Showers of glass from broken windows splintered on the sidewalks and thousands of trees were snapped. Long sections of Euclid avenue, the street that, more than any other, gave Cleveland the name of Forest City, were piled high with fallen trunks. Trees were uprooted in parks and avenues.

Live wires, tangled in deadly coils in the streets when the poles fell in the storm's wake, made many streets paths of perils. Most of those who were drowned were fishing in small boats on the lake when the storm broke. They were unable to get to shore in time, and their boats were swamped by the huge waves. Life-savers and boatmen made several daring rescues.

SOME PLAIN TALK
FOR YOUNG GIRLS

Juvenile Court Lays Down Rules of Attire.

Cincinnati, June 1.—Hazel Arnold, aged fifteen, and Ida Thomas, fourteen, were brought before Judge John A. Caldwell of the juvenile court because they had been saucy to the police when officers objected to their alleged actions.

"Young girls like you must not wear hats and bangs and Grecian bands around the hair," said Judge Caldwell, criticizing their appearance. "I propose to do all in my power to break up this kind of costuming by young girls—the kind of dressing that attracts undue attention of the men. It is one of the greatest causes of juvenile delinquency, and I do not see what any mother is thinking about to allow her daughter to get herself up in any such fashion."

"I believe in modest attire for young girls. It hurts me every time I go along the street and see a young girl in short dresses wearing fancy slippers and thin, fancy stockings with a slip of a dress and a rat or a Grecian band in her hair, or with her hair bobbed down over her forehead. A girl in a short dress should never wear a low-necked costume."

He continued the cases of the girls until Saturday for investigation.

MAKING THE BEST OF BAD SITUATION

Commodore Benedict's Party Still Stranded.

Key West, Fla., June 1.—Despite the efforts of three tugs, the yacht Virginia, with E. C. Benedict and party of friends on board, is still stranded on Colorado reef on the north coast of Cuba. The yacht struck the reef last Sunday morning. It is in an easy position and seems uninjured. Benedict and his friends are still on board the yacht and all are well. They are making the best of the situation and hope that the yacht will soon be floated.

Supplies For Stranded Yacht.

Havana, June 1.—The steamer Alonzo, with the steward and a quantity of supplies, has sailed for E. C. Benedict's stranded yacht, the Virginia, at Jutlas key.

COLONEL GOETHALS
WAS OUTDISTANCED

Worsted in Race With a Panama Diplomat.

New Orleans, May 31.—In a race that may develop international features of unusual interest, Colonel George W. Goethals is twelve hours behind.

Leading him is Carlos G. Arosemena, minister of public works and nephew of the president of Panama. Their goal is President Taft's ear, which each is eager to capture first.

The canal builder and the Panamanian official arrived on the same ship. Colonel Goethals wants the president to make swift and vigorous use of the big stick to suppress the gambling evil, which he declares is rampant in Panama, including the canal zone. Minister Arosemena wants to intimate that Panama would dislike and would find distasteful anything that might cause friction about the big ditch.

Arosemena quickly complied with customs and other formalities and came ashore at New Orleans. The colonel became entangled with the customs men. The matter at issue was trivial, but the builder of the world's greatest engineering work was obdurate and retired to his stateroom and undressed, finishing out the night on board the ship.

His wrath at the inspectors was doubled when he found that the Panamanian had beaten him ashore and had already left for Washington.

THE JAPANESE WAY

San Francisco Reports a Case Settled According to Code.

San Francisco, May 31.—Ichimatsu Ohashi, a fine-looking young Japanese, called at the Central Emergency hospital in great excitement and demanded that he be sent to prison because he had betrayed the wife of his best friend, in Chicago. This friend followed him to San Francisco and demanded that he comply with the Japanese code—either commit harakari or suffer his crime to fall on his own family.

Ohashi thought he could evade death by the punishment of going to jail for several years, but when the police declared they could do nothing for him, he became violent and was put in a straitjacket. Some time during the night he managed to work his hands free and hanged himself in his cell.

A New York Flat Mystery.

New York, May 31.—The body at first supposed to be that of Henry A. Schieb, a chauffeur, found in a flat at 511 East Seventy-eighth street, has been identified by Schieb, who had been arrested, as that of his wife. He says he does not know how she died, and at present the authorities are unable to tell. She had been dead for months.

STEEL HEAD CALLED ON TO TELL ABOUT IT

Stanley Committee Wants to Know What Gary Knows.

Washington, June 1.—Judge Elbert H. Gary of the United States Steel corporation received a subpoena to testify before the Stanley committee today. He is expected to throw important light upon the affairs of the corporation.

The committee will continue its meetings here until the end of the present session of congress. It then intends to go to New York, Pittsburgh and Chicago and take testimony. There probably will be no man of prominence in steel affairs or in any great banking institution or other line of industry that is in any way connected with steel that will not eventually be examined.

$50,000 FOR BRIDE.

How "Apple King" Won a Niece of Nelson Morris.

"I'd like to marry you," was the third sentence ever addressed to her by Henry O. Spruck, the "Oregon apple king," declared Mrs. Frances Rosenblatt, niece of Nelson Morris, the late packer of Chicago, in confirming the report that she was to marry Mr. Spruck, whose wife died recently. "He made my brother introduce us. He began making love right away. When I refused him again and again he still asked me to marry him. Finally I began to love him for his persistence. Then one day he said, 'I'll give you $50,000 if you'll marry me.'"

"Before the wedding? I asked as a joke. 'Yes,' he replied, and I took him up. Well, we'll be married in June."

"I couldn't help it," said Mr. Spruck in telling his side. "I fell in love with her when I first saw her, and I had to have her. Did I mean it when I offered her the $50,000? Well, I should say I did."

WIDOW FOR LACK OF $3.

Couldn't Pay Fee to Have Him Released From Killing Himself.

Because Mrs. Joseph Bourdan of Montreal did not have the necessary $3 required as a fee for a warrant of arrest she is a widow.

Mrs. Bourdan went to the recorder's office and hysterically informed the officials in charge that her husband was making elaborate plans to commit suicide. She urged that he be arrested or in some way prevented from carrying out his design.

The court officers informed her that they would be glad to issue a warrant for the man's arrest if she would pay the usual three dollar fee. She lacked a few cents of the necessary amount, however, and the court clerks declined to make out the papers.

They offered, however, to send the man a letter demanding an explanation of his conduct. By the time the letter, imposingly tied in official tape, reached his home Bourdan had finished his scaffold, arranged his noose and hanged himself.

GELATINIZED GASOLINE.

Standard Oil's Invention Will Be Great Aid to Aviation.

Aeroplane will enter into its great era, according to experts, when patents have been granted for gelatinized gasoline to be used as condensed fuel for the machines. This invention, it is understood, is before patent attorneys, and it is said it will be controlled by the Standard Oil company.

This gelatinized gasoline is pure gasoline, one gallon of which in its new form will be about the size of a stick of shaving soap. It can be used also by automobiles and all engines which depend on gasoline as a motive force.

It is said by patent attorneys that the new compound, if found to work satisfactorily under the given conditions of gasoline proper, will make gasoline one-half cheaper, because it lessens the cost of storage and transportation.

Girls Leap to Safety.

Hartford, Conn., June 1.—Fifty of the girl inmates of the House of the Good Shepherd were on the fourth floor of the building last evening when a fire started. Before they could get to the stairways flames and smoke cut them off. The engine companies had no ladders to reach the fourth floor, but they were supplied with life nets. The firemen called to the girls to jump. By ones and twos they leaped to the nets and all escaped injury.

COMPELS A TEST OF THE NEW LAW

Appellate Court Puts It Up to Supreme Court.

AWAITING ACTION ON PETITION

The New Law Relating to the Transfer of Cases From the Appellate Court to the Supreme Court is Still In Abeyance, the Supreme Court Not Yet Having Handed Down a Ruling on the Petition.

Indianapolis, June 1.—The appellate court has transferred three more cases, under the new jurisdiction act of 1911. This is the law which the clerk of the supreme court, J. Fred France, sought to have construed, he having filed a petition in the supreme court asking for instructions. Briefs were filed by a number of attorneys under the petition, both attacking and upholding the law. But the supreme court has not as yet handed down a ruling on the petition.

In the meantime the appellate court has been awaiting action on the petition, but has apparently concluded to accept the law and act under its provisions until there is some contrary ruling by the supreme court.

Some lawyers were expecting a decision on the France petition May 23, the first day of the term, while others said the constitutionality of the law could not be presented in such a manner, and that no decision could be rendered in the case.

The appellate court, by its action in transferring cases to the supreme court under the act of 1911, will compel the supreme court either to act under the law or to take some action concerning it.

BIG DITCH HALF DONE

Scott County Drainage Project Expected to Stop Annual Losses.

Scottsburg, Ind., June 1.—About one-half of the work on the Scott county canal, about three and one-half miles, is finished. The big steam dredge which is doing the work had to be dismantled this week in order to get the heavy equipment past the railroad bridges at Marshfield. The work of excavating the canal is attracting a great many. Scott county is building the canal to drain the vast areas of bottom swamp land which have heretofore been almost worthless from a farming standpoint because they are overflowed each year. Estimates on the damage done in Scott county alone in the last twenty years from this source amount to more than a million dollars.

Jackson county has now taken hold of a drainage proposition which is even larger than the one in Scott county, and which will affect several hundred thousand acres. A number of prominent farmers of Scott county have for some time been studying the methods followed in northern Indiana, where the lake bog lands have been drained, and the benefit which the drainage has been to that part of the state caused the movement for a drainage system in this county. The course of the canal shortens the course of the old water way from seventeen to seven miles.

The wets had made a special effort to take over Pendleton, but were defeated by a majority of 128.

It can be investigated by Seymour residents.

Louis Scheurich, 317 W. Oak St., Seymour, Ind., says: "I suffered from pains across the small of my back, accompanied by weakness through my loins that made it hard for me to get about. When a friend told me that he had used Doan's Kidney Pills with beneficial results and advised me to try them, I did so. I received great relief from the first and continued use resulted in a cure. I can say that Doan's Pills act just as represented." (Statement given in 1906.)

RE-ENDORSEMENT.

On April 14, 1910 when Mr. Scheurich was interviewed, he added to the above. "It gives me pleasure to again recommend Doan's Kidney Pills. Since this remedy cured me of kidney trouble my health has been excellent."

Lightning Kills Few.

In 1906 lightning killed only 169 people in this whole country. One's chances of death by lightning are less than two in a million. The chance of death from liver, kidney or stomach trouble is vastly greater, but not if Electric Bitters be used, as Robert Madsen, of West Burlington, Ia., proved. Four doctors gave him up after eight months of suffering from virulent liver trouble and yellow jaundice. He was then completely cured by Electric Bitters. They're the best stomach, liver, nerve and kidney remedy and blood purifier on earth. Only 50c at The Andrews Drug Co.

WILL COME BACK PROMISE OF DIAZ

His Danger Threatens Nation Old Dictator Will Return.

THE LAST WORD ON HIS PEOPLE

"I Give You My Word of Honor," He Said, "That I Will Come Back at Any Time My Country Is Involved In Danger, and With You I'll Know How to Conquer Again." He Concluded.

Vera Cruz, June 1.—Porfirio Diaz began his exile from Mexico late last night with flowers in his path, even though bayonets surrounded him. The man who had builded and ruled an empire and who had been spurned in his old age by his people found the bitterness of his passing made smooth at the final moment.

Vera Cruz, never radical during the recent revolution, allowed itself to give Diaz a fitting godspeed. It honored the memory of the Diaz that was not the person of the gray-headed old man who climbed the steps of the steamer Ypiranga. His cabin, which was that of the captain, was banked with exotic blossoms put there by fifty Vera Cruz women.

Promises to Come Back.

Diaz's final word to the nation was that he would come back if any danger threatened. This he promised the officers and soldiers of his little command who had defended him since he fled from the capital.

"I give you my word of honor," he said, "that I will come back at any time my country is involved in danger and with you I'll know how to conquer again."

Hours before Diaz came to the ship the end of the pier was jammed with an orderly crowd. When the Diaz party arrived, the carriages, escorted by aides and cavalry, Diaz lifted his hat as the crowd cheered and the military bugles blew a fanfare. A German band on shipboard played the national Mexican anthem.

Diaz's passage through the crowd on the pier was punctuated by hysterical "vivas." The guns at Santiago castle began the presidential salute. Diaz put his hand to his heart and the crowd caught the meaning. Then Diaz disappeared from the view of his people. The ship will stop at Havana.

Madero Guest of Honor.

El Paso, Tex., June 1.—Francisco I. Madero was the guest of honor last night at a banquet given him by El Pasoans in the Toltec club. Tomorrow morning Madero will leave for Mexico City.

CAN'T DO ANYTHING

President Tells Negroes That Lynching Is Out of His Jurisdiction.

Washington, June 1.—A delegation of colored men who were received in the East room of the White House presented a written petition to President Taft urging him to send a special message to congress to ask the enactment of a federal lynching law making the crime of lynching punishable by the federal government.

The petition declared that the United States is "rapidly becoming a hissing and a byword upon the lips of civilized people everywhere, and the very foundations of our government are being undermined," because of the practice of lynching. "The people in numerous communities of our beloved land," continued the petition, "are being fast transformed into hordes of thugs, outlaws and murderers."

The president explained that the crime of lynching came entirely within the jurisdiction of the state governments and that he was powerless to help them, though he deplored the laxness with which the laws against lynching were sometimes enforced.

YOUTH AND CRIME

New York Boys Murder Companion For Small Sum of Money.

New York, June 1.—A little Italian boy, small for his fourteen years, sat in the Oak street police station and told dispassionately how early on the morning of Decoration day a thirteen-year-old boy, Kangelio Leone, shot little Johnny Mialo through the heart.

"Johnny stole $15 out of his mother's bank on a shelf," said the undersized Carmine Piombino, "and Fatty Leone wanted to get it. So while Fatty was in my house Tuesday morning, Fatty shot Johnny through the heart and took the money Johnny had left, $7.50. Then Fatty and me tied Johnny's body up and we shoved Johnny into a feed bag and me and Fatty carried Johnny down two flights of steps to our cellar and shoved him in a coal bin and covered the bag with oilcloth and nailed boards over the place the bin opens.

"Then Fatty gives me a quarter and my brother Joe—he's thirteen—another quarter, and Fatty goes out, buys a swell suit of clothes, and we all go to the moving picture shows."

"And what made you tell Fatty's mother and the police all about it and where to find Johnny's body?" the boy was asked.

"I was bustin' to tell it," Carmine answered. "I didn't like sleeping in our rooms with Johnny dead in the cellar."

FROM NEW YORK

To Honolulu.—An Automobile Party Reaches Seymour.

Conducting a whirlwind campaign in an automobile more than 100 miles a day for eight months, B. O. Tilden, president of the American Sanitary Works and a party of sanitation experts, arrived in Seymour Thursday evening and spent the night at the New Lynn. They are traveling in a 50 horse power Stoddard-Dayton car having driven more than 4,200 miles by a circuitous route from New York. Before completing his trip Mr. Tilden will have toured 25,000 miles in the United States, British Columbia and Hawaii, including two transcontinental journeys. He is accompanied and assisted by W. A. Cawley, western manager, Geo. O. Jackson, representing the Indiana Supply Co., of Indianapolis, all of whom are known by local plumbers and architects.

The large machine which had a calliope attachment, attracted much attention in Seymour this morning. On the car was a conspicuous sign which read "From New York to Honolulu." The party visited the local plumbers while here.

The tour of the country by the Tilden party is an example of enterprising and expensive advertising. Tilden is president of the American Sanitary Works Organization, which manufactures and sells water closets and sanitary fixtures. On his trip he will address organizations of architects, plumbers, contractors and builders, as well as civic societies and associations that are interested in the promotion of public health.

He has a carefully planned itinerary and arrived here from Indianapolis on schedule time. Since leaving New York April 20 he has visited 58 cities and made 41 addresses. While on his trip he will gather information for the use of good roads organizations. A large amount of special equipment is carried by the machine.

In addition to the customary top, the car carries 15-foot crowbar, ax, shovel, 400 feet of motor rope, block and tackle, special presto gas tank, gas generator, power air pump, mud hooks, chains, two extra tires, demountable rims, special lunch box to hold three days' rations for four persons, five-gallon radiator tank, one-gallon for drinking water, tire trunk and compartment for three suit cases, dry and storage batteries; bulb windlass to be used with motor rope and crowbar to pull car up the banks of dry river beds or out of gulches; besides a great quantity of maps, road books, licenses, kodak supplies and a dozen other articles that may be useful in the wilderness. All of this, however, was placed so conveniently that no one would suspect the amount of paraphernalia carried in the car. Accurate records of the cost of operation and maintenance of the machine will be kept throughout the entire trip.

For Miss Yaegge.

Miss Elsie Niemeyer entertained the clerks of the Gold Mine last night at her home in honor of Miss Ellen Yaegge, who has been the trimmer in the millinery department this season and who leaves next week for her home. The evening was pleasantly spent with games and music. Refreshments were served.

TODAY'S LAPORTE PROGRAM

One of the Most Interesting Features of Midsummer Meeting of Indiana Democratic Editorial Association Was an Address Before Editors This Afternoon by Governor Marshall on the New Constitution.

Laporte, Ind., June 2.—The Democratic editors of Indiana and their families, accompanied by invited guests, are having a good time "trouping" over Indiana. They are traveling in three special interurban cars, and all along the road a cordial greeting has been given them.

The three cars left Indianapolis at noon yesterday. The "trouper" spent the night at South Bend after a short stop last evening at Elkhart, where they had some fun. This morning they arrived in Laporte, where they are being shown a good time. They will visit Michigan City and have another good time and they will keep on having good times until they return to Indianapolis, about noon Sunday.

Governor Marshall, who last evening delivered an address at Michigan City, this morning joined the editors at Laporte. He made a prepared speech before the editors this afternoon, in which he had much to say about the new constitution, and he also will make a few interesting remarks at a banquet to be given in the evening. S. Paul Poynter of the Sullivan Times, president of the association, will act as toastmaster.

BAR SPORTS ON MAY 30

Petition to Be Circulated Asking the Legislature to Pass Law.

Indianapolis, June 2.—Max J. Young, a clerk in the city controller's office, is preparing a petition asking the state legislature to enact a law forbidding sports, such as automobile racing, boxing matches, baseball games, horse races, etc., on Memorial day. It is expected the petition will become a state-wide affair, and will have thousands of signatures by the time the legislature meets in 1913.

Young is a member of Ben Harrison Camp No. 356, Sons of Veterans. Individual members of the camp have approved Young's suggestion and the camp itself will be the first organization asked to endorse the movement. The petition will be circulated among the Sons of Veterans camps and G. A. R. posts of the state.

Automobiles in Indiana.

Indianapolis, June 2.—Automobile registrations in the office of the secretary of state for May, this year, show a gain of 595 over the number registered in the corresponding month last year, or 25 per cent. The total registered for the month was 2,435. For April and May the total was 4,058. There are approximately 33,000 automobiles registered in the state.

An Automobile Mystery.

Hammond, Ind., June 2.—An automobile lies at the bottom of a steep curved hill between St. John and Dyer and the authorities are unable to find its passengers. The car plunged off the hill into the ditch while going at a high speed and was wrecked in the night, it is believed. A woman's hat was found in the water near the machine.

Punished For Cruelty.

New Albany, Ind., June 2.—Because a mule trade was prevented by the animal's habit of hanging its tongue out of the side of its mouth, Frank Goss of Greenville, ten miles north of this city, cut off the end of the mule's tongue. He pleaded guilty to a charge of cruelty to animals and was fined $15.

They Both Went Down.

Hartford City, Ind., June 2.—Glen Woolard, aged seventeen, and William Williams, Jr., aged thirty, were drowned in an abandoned gravel pit. Woolard was seized with cramps while swimming and Williams attempted to rescue him. Williams leaves a widow and one child.

Jury Gave Him a Cent.

Implicates Goshen Man.

Goshen, Ind., June 2.—John Devine of Broad Brook, Conn., and Jack Norris of Goshen are under arrest charged with stealing a horse from Jesse Juday. Devine implicated Norris. Devine has served sentences for burglary in the east, according to the police.

Four Victims of Rabid Dog.

Terre Haute, Ind., June 2.—A mad dog ran amuck on a farm just south of this city, severely biting four persons before it finally was shot.

CAUCUS SITS DOWN ON FREE RAW WOOL

The Underwood Bill Unanimously Accepted.

Washington, June 2.—Last night the Democrats of the house of representatives repudiated William J. Bryan's attempt to dictate their policy in regard to the revision of the wool schedule. By a unanimous vote in a party caucus they turned down the Nebraska demand for free raw wool and accepted the bill prepared by the ways and means committee under the direction of Representative Underwood, which fixes a duty of 20 per cent on raw wool, as compared with an equivalent of 44.31 per cent imposed under the Payne-Aldrich tariff law.

The effect of the action by Representative Underwood and his followers in defeating Mr. Bryan's efforts to impose his will on the house organization will extend beyond the proposed revision of the wool schedule. It amounts to the serving of notice upon Mr. Bryan that the Democratic organization of the house will not tolerate his assumed leadership and that the responsible house leaders are capable of holding the reins against him. Representative Harrison of New York, one of the five Democratic members of the ways and means committee, was the champion of the Bryan cause on the floor. When the free raw wool people finally realized that they were hopelessly defeated, shortly before midnight, they consented to make the action of the caucus unanimous after revenue tariff Democrats had agreed to introduce a resolution declaring that a tariff on raw wool was necessary because of the condition of the treasury resulting from Republican extravagance. Representative Rucker of Missouri, Francis Ashbrook and Sharp of Ohio, and Gray of Indiana declined to be bound by the action of the caucus and did not vote. They explained that they had pledged themselves to their constituents. Champ Clark delivered a speech congratulating the Democrats on the practically unanimous action that they had taken.

The Underwood bill makes a reduction of from one-half to two-thirds in all wool duties. According to Chairman Underwood the proposed wool tariff represents an estimated reduction, based on last year's imports, of a little more than $1,400,000 in the revenues. Mr. Underwood estimated a loss of about $7,700,000 in revenues from raw wool, but a gain of about $6,380,000 in revenues from the manufactured woolsens.

Charged With Wife Murder.

New York, June 2.—Henry A. Scheib was arraigned before Magistrate Corrigan, charged with murdering his wife, whose putrid body was found a few days ago in the bathtub at the Scheib apartment, where it had evidently lain for months. An adjournment was secured until 1 o'clock Saturday afternoon in the same court.

Not Admitted to Bail.

Logansport, Ind., June 2.—Attorneys for Samuel A. Michael, convicted of manslaughter, made an effort to obtain his release on bond, pending argument on a motion for a new trial. Judge Lairy refused to admit Michael to bail, and fixed next Monday as the day for hearing arguments.

Suffered From Lightning Shock.

Anderson, Ind., June 2.—Mrs. Philip Michael of this city was unconscious for several hours after lightning struck the family residence, tore away a chimney and part of the roof, and then passed out through a room where Mrs. Michael was at work.

Ask Mayor to Investigate.

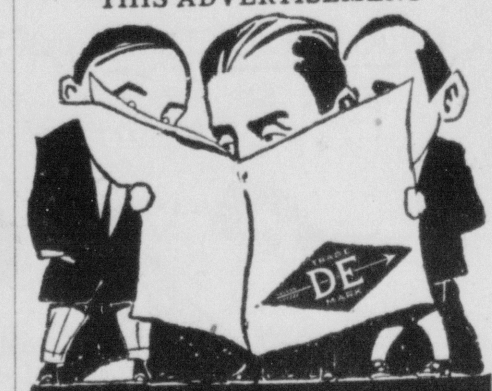

Indianapolis, June 2.—At a conference of the international labor unions having headquarters in this city, a demand was formulated and presented to Mayor Shank asking him to investigate the conduct of detectives in the arrest of John McNamara.

Man a Working Machine.

Man of today is as near a machine as he probably ever can become, and still exist. To keep him in perfect "running order" he has to be treated as such. Now, if your watch or auto had slipped a cog, or was "clogged up" with foreign matter threatening its very existence unless removed, would you apply acid or dope to rid it of foreign matter or to adjust its parts?

—As With Auto and Watch—so with the human body, it gets out of running order through the process of life and needs repairing. No defective machine can turn out good work. Every day that an "unclean" watch or auto, or any other machine is compelled to run, wears seriously its vital parts and saps its vitality. The longer you try to work while the body machinery is out of gear, the greater will be the damage it suffers. Health depends upon the human machine being kept in good mechanical order. Adjustment of the human body is the particular and special work of —The Spauhurst Osteopaths— That they are expert body mechanists, know what to do, and how to correctly fix what is mechanically wrong with the body structure is evidenced by kindly expressions of those who have given their treatment a fair trial. They give a little more satisfaction than is expected and make good every promise. They do not claim to perform miracles. Aid nature to health—that's all. Adjust the human machinery and nature makes the cure.

Japan Will Hold an Exposition

JAPAN is to hold a grand exposition in 1917 in commemoration of the golden wedding anniversary of the emperor. The Japanese government has appropriated 20,000,000 yen, which is equal to $10,000,000 in American money. All the nations of the world are expected to participate, and the United States has already promised, through President Taft, to do so.

Y. Bryan Yamashita is at present in this country as special commissioner of the exposition. He was introduced to President Taft by William Jennings Bryan, whom Yamashita some years ago adopted as his father, after a custom prevalent among the Japanese. Yamashita gives an interesting recital of the incidents leading up to this adoption and his assumption of the name "Bryan."

In the Japan Gazette he read of Bryan's famous cross-of-gold-crown-of-thorns speech at the Democratic national convention at Chicago in 1896. He was impressed with Bryan's purpose to aid the common people and wrote to the Nebraskan, stating that he should like to adopt him as his father and acquire an American education under his tutelage. "Can I come to your home?" wound up Yamashita's letter. He got no reply.

Starts For America.

Yamashita asked his father for money to pay his way to America and urged some friends to induce his father to let him make the trip. Ultimately his father sold a piece of land and gave his son the proceeds. When he landed at San Francisco Yamashita had only $30 and went to work on a farm. He kept on writing to Mr. Bryan and repeating his request. Still no reply.

After five months he had saved $40. He had talked with his employer about his ambition, and his perseverance made such an impression that the farmer's sympathies were aroused. Yamashita was determined to have an interview with Bryan.

At Bryan's Home.

About this time Yamashita got a letter from Bryan advising him not to come to Lincoln. The weather was very cold in Lincoln, and, besides, a youth of such honesty of purpose as Yamashita must succeed anywhere, wrote Bryan. But Yamashita had made up his mind that he wouldn't give up unless Bryan turned him down personally. The farmer gave him a basket of food and some money.

With $45 of his limited funds he bought a ticket for Lincoln and wired Bryan that he had started. He arrived in Lincoln at night with $2.25 in his pocket. The hotel man wanted $2.50 for a night's board and lodging, but took $2 after Yamashita had explained the purport of his visit.

Next morning Yamashita presented himself at the Bryan home and was met at the door by Mrs. Bryan. Mr. Bryan was in bed sick. Mrs. Bryan invited him in. Later in the day Mr. Bryan appeared, and the upshot of their conversation was that Yamashita was told he could stay. He was given a room for himself and a separate table in the dining room. This was in November, 1897, and it was cold, as Bryan had written. The following day Bryan bought him a suit of heavy clothes and an overcoat.

His American Education.

Bryan got Professor Caldwell of the University of Nebraska to teach Yamashita American history, while he himself spent hours with the Japanese instructing him in other subjects. Yamashita also had access to Bryan's library. He attended the high school and later the University of Nebraska, from which he was graduated.

Yamashita stayed at Bryan's home for six years. In 1904 he went back to Japan. For a year and a half he was an instructor at the Nekoya Commercial academy and then made a six months' tour of the world with Speaker Haseba of the house of commons. He was secretary to the president of the Tokyo Interstate exposition in 1908. He had charge of the Japan Gazette in 1909. Last November he became connected with the 1917 exposition. He is also manager of the Japan Magazine, published in Tokyo. He is thirty-three years old.

TO SING FOR THE KAISER.

Honors For Mme. Nordica, Who Wears Only American Made Clothes.

Even American singers, it seems, are subject to the command of the German emperor in matters artistic at least, for the most prominent American dramatic soprano, Mme. Lillian Nordica, has been commanded by Kaiser William II. to sing "Tristan and Isolde" at the Royal Opera in Berlin on May 27.

Although Mme. Nordica defers to the imperial command in the matter of singing, she is asserting her Americanism in a thoroughly practical manner. In the declaration which she made before sailing the singer invoiced fifty pieces of luggage which contained more than a hundred house, street and evening gowns, beside hats and theatrical costumes, all of which were made in New York by American dressmakers and milliners. It is not entirely through patriotism that the singer wears American clothes only. She declares they fit better, wear better, look better and cost less than those made in Europe. For years Mme. Nordica has had all her clothes made in New York, Berlin and Paris modistes do not appeal to her. By having all her luggage examined and invoiced she is spared the usual customs inquisition upon returning.

After the Berlin engagement Mme. Nordica will sing the operas of the Nibelungenlied Ring at the Paris Opera.

for the person who has imbibed to satiety and wishes surreptitiously to provide something for the morning.

The handle is perforated at the end, and running through both handle and stick is a rubber tubing, forming a siphon. It may be relieved of its contents by giving the screw tip a few turns.

Nine Already at Work In Overalls—Opportunity For Factory Girls

They Learn How to Become Agriculturists and Landscape Gardeners

WORKING ten hours a day and dressed in blue jumpers, overalls and cotton shirts, nine happy girls are forming the pioneer class of a school of agriculture which Mrs. Oliver H. P. Belmont is establishing and intends to endow on her Brookholt estate at Hempstead, N.

out on 200 acres of her Hempstead place, is probably the only one of its kind in the United States.

It is her intention to give the girls who show aptitude and interest every opportunity, with the hope that on leaving they will be able to take positions as superintendents or go still further into the field of landscape gardening. And it is this brand of ambition and enthusiasm which makes the girls at Brookholt oblivious to aching muscles and clay coated shoes and brings a grin to their faces when you speak about the ten hour day with an interrogation point in your eyes.

Mrs. Belmont Talks.

"It seems as though my idea of a farm for women has dated from the time I can remember anything," said Mrs. Belmont. "I have always believed in it, always wanted it, and now that the school is started I intend that the land shall never be sold; that it shall always remain what it is—a school of agriculture for women. I intend to endow it, and when all the land about is built up and Uniondale is a thriving town this tract of 200 acres will remain exactly what it is today, though larger and always progressive, I hope, in the center of the community."

When Brookholt was being laid out several years ago and I undertook its personal supervision, though I had the greenest kind of Polacks, raw Irish and German immigrants laboring under me, I hadn't the slightest trouble with them. This confirmed the belief I have always held—that there was a vocation that women could succeed in equally with men and not only succeed in, but find tremendously interesting as well.

they have done throughout the day, the methods followed in each case, the condition of the soil they found and, in short, every detail of plowing, planting, sowing or reaping.

"Then when they leave the school and start out for themselves these diaries will have been converted into the most valuable textbooks, for they will be chronicles not only of what is right to do theoretically in different instances, but they will also stand a record of the actual experience encountered in developing the theories in each case."

"There is no reason why women should not make clever and astute farmers. Women who are at the head of beautiful country homes in England take far more interest in their grounds and houses than the women in this country. Here we leave the work quite to outsiders, to whom we pay a big price to do the work and not bother us until it is done, whereas the wives of country gentlemen abroad demonstrate the keenest personal interest in the development of everything that goes on about their estates. It is really beautiful work, and when has not beautiful work appealed especially to women?"

The Daily Schedule.

From the time they arrive at Brookholt the girls are given two months' probation. If they prove sufficiently able, strong and interested to go on with the work they proceed at $16 a month.

Their schedule for the day begins at 6 a. m. with the sounding of the rising gong, and breakfast is served at 6:30.

At 7 o'clock they start out in the fields and do not return until 12 o'clock, the dinner hour. At 1 o'clock they again start out and do not come back until 6. A hearty supper is then served, and the evening is spent in talking over the day's work and the writing of the diaries.

The final ceremony of the day's actual work is the milking of the cows. Covered from head to foot with white gowns, the girls take turns at playing milkmaid each night.

After the diaries are written they turn in at an early hour.

EDICT HITS LADY DECIES.

Her Skirts Must Be Replaced, According to Queen's Anti-hobble Order.

Every one who has seen the gorgeous trousseau of Lady Decies (formerly Vivien Gould) is wondering what the American bride will do now that Queen Mary has banned hobble effects and tight skirts from coronation functions. Upon all occasions in which the youthful Lady Decies has appeared the ultra "tightness" of her American made clothes has been remarked.

and if she bows to the order of the British queen she will have to give up her wardrobe and have new gowns made in fuller fashion.

Of course Lady Decies may have a specially made coronation robe, but most peeress brides prefer to wear their wedding gown with a court train added. Lady Decies' wedding gown was probably made with the coronation in mind, but now will have to be remodeled to meet the almost Victorian prudishness of Queen Mary. As for her other gowns, they were all cut in the prevailing tight hobble fashion.

By friends who have seen all her gowns it is said that it will cost the bride a small fortune to replace them by gowns that shall please the queen.

Hopping For Husbands.

This huge pillar, bearing an iron man on its top, is associated with a curious superstition that any unmarried woman succeeding in hopping around it three times will get a husband within the year.

The pillar is a few miles out of Waterford, Ireland, and was erected to enable vessels to distinguish between Tramore bay and Waterford harbor. Many visitors test the value of the legend.

GIRL GUIDES OF AMERICA.

Western Pastor Finds Organization Similar to the Boy Scouts.

Plans have been completed by Rev. David W. Ferry, pastor of Emmanuel Presbyterian church of Spokane, founder of the Girl Guides of America, to organize patrols in several thousand cities, towns and hamlets of the United States and Canada within the next six months. The chief aim of the movement is to supplement in a material way the training of girls between the ages of eleven and eighteen years for their particular sphere in life by inculcating womanly traits and refinement.

with devotion to home and love of neatness and order and to fit them for emergencies.

"Be Prepared" is the motto of the organization, the emblem being an up-lifted torch signifying that the guide's action will always be above reproach and will endeavor to be a guide to those in distress and light the pathway of others to all that is good and noble.

The plan of organization is similar to that of the boy scouts.

The guide uniform is a sailor suit of dark blue material and a sailor hat with a band of company colors.

Dr. Eliot Tells How to Grow Old Happily

Go to church. Keep a clean heart and a good conscience. Give your mind exercise as well as your body. Really think. Exercise regularly, eat in moderation, take a full allowance of sleep.

Avoid indulgence in luxuries and the habitual use of any drug whatsoever—not only of alcohol, but of tobacco, tea and coffee.

UCH, in brief, is the advice of Dr. Charles W. Eliot, president emeritus of Harvard, to the man who would live to be a good old age, retaining his faculties to the end in unabated vigor. Such are the rules by which Dr. Eliot has found it advisable to regulate his own life and to which he ascribes the fact that, in his seventy-eighth year, he is able to execute with ease a greater number and a greater variety of tasks than many men years his junior.

"I am not one of those," says Dr. Eliot, "who believe that it is necessary to abstain wholly from the use of alcohol, tobacco, tea, coffee or other stimulant. On the contrary, I feel that there are times when a stimulant used in moderation is beneficial. What I am opposed to is the habitual use of stimulants, even in moderation. The man, for instance, who is accustomed to take every day so much as a single glass of whisky is doing himself more harm than he realizes."

Effect of Alcohol.

"Recent psychological research as conducted in this country and in Germany has made it certain that the effect of alcohol when habitually used, even in the smallest quantity, is to diminish one's efficiency and to render the body more susceptible to the inroads of disease. I am convinced that a similar result follows the habitual use of tobacco, tea, coffee, etc.

Advocates Exercise.

"As to exercise, precisely the opposite course should be followed. Stimulants if used at all should be used only on exceptional occasions. Exercise should be taken regularly, though always in moderation. One of the chief objections I have to the competitive games so popular nowadays—football, hockey and the like—is that they tend to overexhaust the player, taxing his nervous system fully as much as if not more than overwork would tax it. Overexercise is indeed overwork. Accordingly I have always been more in favor of games and recreations of an individualistic character—forms of exercise that one can relinquish the moment the distress signal of fatigue appears. Pre-eminent among such forms of exercise I place walking, driving, horseback riding, rowing, sailing, bicycle riding and playing golf."

Eight Hours' Sleep.

"I also feel strongly with regard to the matter of sleep. My own allowance is eight hours, and I am inclined to think that a man cannot get along on much less and do his best work. Some people require ten hours. One often hears, on the other hand, of men who boast that they can do with four or five hours of sleep and feel no ill effects. My observation is that such men sleep more in the daytime than they realize and that they often go to sleep at most inopportune moments. My firm belief, then, is that the man who as a general thing sleeps less than seven to eight hours out of the twenty-four will find nature compelling him at intervals to make up for the lost hours."

"There are many ways by which a man may be helped to acquire habits of cheerfulness and serenity. The best way assuredly is for him to live as a man should—honestly and uprightly. A good conscience will go far toward giving him length of days. I might add that a most powerful aid to right living is systematic churchgoing. My advice to every man is to join some church and attend its services regularly."

S.S.S. FOR SUMMER SKIN DISEASES

During the summer most persons are annoyed with pimples, boils, rashes or eruptions, while others suffer more severely with Eczema, Acne, Tetter, Salt Rheum, or some kindred skin disease. All skin affections come from humors and acids in the circulation. The blood, as it circulates through the system, deposits these humors and acids in the sensitive membranous flesh which lies just beneath the outer skin. This acid matter causes inflammation and a discharge which breaks through the delicate cuticle, and skin diseases are the result. To cure any skin trouble the blood must be freed from all acids and humors, and for this purpose nothing equals S.S.S. This great blood purifier completely removes every particle of the impurity, enriches the blood, and in this way permanently cures skin diseases. S.S.S. cures because it purifies the blood and thus does away with the cause. Book on skin diseases and any medical advice you may desire sent free. S.S.S. is for sale at drug stores.

"I had hardly done this when I heard the servants on the walk outside, then Arthur going down. The impulse to see and speak to him again was irresistible. I flew after him and caught him in the lower hall. 'Arthur,' I cried, 'look at me—look at me well—and then—kiss me.' And he did kiss me. I'm glad when I think of it, though he did say next minute: 'What is the matter with you? What are you going to do—to meet that villain?'"

"I looked straight into his face. I waited till I saw I had his whole attention. Then I said as slowly and emphatically as I could: 'If you mean Elwood—no! I shall never meet him again, except in Adelaide's presence. He will not want to meet me. You may be at ease about that. Tomorrow all will be well and Adelaide very happy.'"

"He shrugged his shoulders and reached for his coat and hat. As he was putting them on I said, 'Don't forget to harness up Jenny.' Jenny is the gray mare. 'And leave off the bells,' I urged. 'I don't want Adelaide to hear me go out.'"

"He swung about at this. 'You and Adelaide are not very good friends, it seems.' 'As good as you and she are,' I answered. Then I flung my arms about him. 'Don't go down street to night,' I prayed. 'Stay home for this one night. Stay in the house with Adelaide. Stay till I come home.' He stared, and I saw his color change. Then he flung me off, but not rudely. 'Why don't you stay?' he asked. 'Then he laughed and added, 'I'll go harness the mare.'"

"The key's in the kitchen," I said. 'I'll go get it for you.' I heard Zadok bring it in. He did not answer, and I went for the key. I found two on the nail, and I brought them both, but I only handed him one, the key to the stable door. 'Which way are you going?' I asked as he looked at the key, then back toward the kitchen. 'The short way, of course. Then here's the key to the Fulton grounds.'"

"As he took the key I prayed again: 'Don't do what's in your mind, Arthur. Don't drink tonight.' He only laughed, and I said my last word: 'If you do it will be for the last time. You'll never drink again after tomorrow.'"

Where Did You Get That Hat?

It is a cinch that this girl didn't get that hat without first seeing it—and trying on lots of other shapes before she finally decided that this big and cute creation became her beauty.

Yet there are many women who buy other things without ever having a chance to inspect the goods beforehand. They order from a catalogue. Instead of going shopping they use a sheet of paper and a postage stamp. They frequently get bunkoes instead of bargains from the mail order stores.

If you see what you are buying before you buy it you needn't get bunkoed.

The way to see goods is to go to your home town stores and take a look.

Uproar in the court. If she had screamed when she said she did, so some one cried out loudly now. I think that pitiful person was myself. They say I had been standing straight up in my place for the last two minutes.

CHAPTER XXV.

"CHOOSE."

"I HAVE not finished," were the first words we heard from Carmel when order was restored and we were all in a condition to listen again.

"I had to relate what you have just heard that you might understand what happened next. I was not used to pain, and I could never have kept on pressing those irons to my cheek if I had not had the strength given me by my own reflection in the glass. When I thought the burn was quite deep enough I tore the tongs away and was lifting them to the other cheek when I saw the door behind me open inch by inch, as though pushed by hesitating touches.

"Instantly I forgot my pain, almost my purpose, watching that door. I saw it slowly swing to its full width and disclose my sister standing in the gap with a look and in an attitude which terrified me more than the fire had done. Dropping the tongs, I turned and faced her, covering my cheek instinctively with my hand.

"I saw her eyes run over my elaborate dinner dress—my little hand bag and the candle burning in a room made warm with a fire on the hearth—this before she spoke a single word. Then, with a deep laboring breath, she looked me in the eye again with the simple question:

"And where is he?"

Carmel's head had drooped at this, but she raised it almost instantly. Mine did not rise so readily.

"Do you mean Elwood?" I asked. "You know!" said she. 'The veil is down between us, Carmel. We will speak plainly now. I saw him give you the letter. I heard you ask Arthur to harness up the horse. I have demeaned myself to follow you, and we will have no subterfuges now. You expect him here?'"

"No," I cried. 'I am not so bad as that, Adelaide—nor is he. Here is the note. You will see by it what he expects and at what place I should have joined him if I had been the selfish creature you think.' I had the note hidden in my breast. I took it out and held it toward her. I did not feel the burn at all, but I kept it covered. She glanced down at the words, and I felt like falling at her feet, she looked so miserable.

"She glanced down at the paper and let it drop almost immediately from her hand. 'I cannot read his words!' she cried. 'I do not need to. We both know which of us he loves best. You cannot say that it is I, his engaged wife.' I was silent, and her face took on an awful pallor. 'Carmel,' said she, 'do you know what this man's love has been to me? You are a child, a warm hearted and passionate child, but you do not know a woman's heart. Certainly you do not know mine. I doubt if any one does—even he. Cares have warped my life. I have no charms to rival yours; I have only love, such love as you cannot dream of at your age. And this is no longer desirable to him!'"

"You see that I remember every word she spoke. They burned more fiercely than the iron. That did not burn at all just then. I was cold instead—bitterly, awfully cold. My very heart seemed frozen, and the silence was dreadful. But I could not speak; I could not answer her.

"You have everything," she now went on. 'Why did you rob me of my one happiness? And you have robbed me. Carmel, do you know why I am here? I shook my head. 'I am here to end it all,' said she.

"I tottered at this threat, and she, a mother to me from my cradle, started instinctively to catch me, but the feeling left her before she had taken two steps, and she stopped still. 'Drop your hand!' she cried. 'I want to see your whole face while I ask you one last question. I could not read the note. Why did you come here? I dropped my hand, and she stood staring; then she uttered a cry and ran quickly toward me. 'What is it?' she cried. 'What has happened to you? Is it the shadow or—'"

"I caught her by the hand. I could speak now. 'Adelaide,' said I, 'you are not the only one to love to the point of hurt. I love you. Let this little scar be witness. Then, as her eyes opened and she staggered, I caught her to my breast and hid my face on her shoulder. 'You say that tomorrow I shall be free to receive notes. He will not wish to write them tomorrow. The beauty he liked is gone. If it weighed overmuch with him, then you and I are on a plane again—or I am on an inferior one. Your joy will be sweeter for this break.'"

"She started, raised my head from her shoulder, looked at me and shuddered, but no longer with hate. 'Carmel,' she whispered, 'the story—the story I read you of Francis I. and—"

"Yes," I agreed, 'that made me think.' Her knees bent under her; she sank at my feet, but her eyes never left my face. 'And—and Elwood?'"

"He knows nothing. I did not make up my mind till tonight. Adelaide, it had to be. I hadn't the strength to leave you all or—to say no if he ever asked me to my face what he asked me in that note."

"And then I tried to lift her, but she was kissing my feet, kissing my dress, sobbing out her life on my hands. Oh, I was happy! My future looked very simple to me. But my cheek began to burn, and instinctively I put up my hand. This brought her to her feet. 'You are suffering,' she cried. 'You must go home at once, at once, while I telephone to Dr. Carpenter. 'We will go together, I said. 'We can telephone from there.' But at this the awful look came back into her face, and, seeing her forget my hurt, I forgot it, too. In dread of what she would say when she found strength to speak.

"It was worse than anything I had imagined; she refused absolutely to go back home. 'Carmel,' said she, 'I have done injustice to your youth. You love him, too—not like a child, but a woman. The tangle is worse than I thought; your heart is caught in it as well as mine, and you shall have your chance. My death will give it to you.'"

"I tried to dissuade her. I urged every plea, even that of my own sacrifice. But she was no more her natural self. She had taken up the note and read it during my entreaties, and my words fell on deaf ears. 'Why, these words have killed me!' she cried, crumpling the note in her hand. 'What will a little poison do? It can only finish what he has begun.'"

"Poison!" I remembered how I had heard her pushing about bottles in the medicine cabinet and felt my legs grow weak and my head swim. 'You will not!' I cried, watching her hand, in terror of seeing it rise to her breast.

"When I came here, she said, 'I brought a bottle of cordial with me and three glasses. I brought a little vial of poison, too, once ordered for sickness. I expected to find Elwood here. If I had I meant to drop the poison into one glass and then fill them all up with the cordial. We should have drunk, each one of us his glass, and one of us would have fallen. I did not care which, you or Elwood or myself. But he is not here, and the cast of the die is between us two, unless you wish a certainty. Carmel, in which case I will pour out but one glass and drink that myself."

"She was in a fever now and desperate. Death was in the room. I felt it in my lifted hair and in her strangely drawn face. If I screamed who would hear me? I never thought of the telephone, and I doubt if she would have let me use it then. The power she had always exerted over me was very strong in her at this moment.

"Shall I drink alone?" she repeated, and I cried out, 'No,' at which her hand went to her breast, as I had so long expected, and I saw the glitter of a little vial as she drew it forth. "Oh, Adelaide!" I began, but she heeded me no more than the dead.

"On leaving home she had put on a long coat with pockets, and this coat was still on her and the pockets gaping. Thrusting her other hand into one of these she drew out a little flask covered with wicker and set it on a stand beside her. Then she pulled out two small glasses and set them down also, and then she turned her back. I could hear the drop-drop of the liquor, and dark as the room was it seemed to turn darker till I put out my hands like one groping in a sudden night. But everything cleared before me when she turned around again. Features set like hers force themselves to be seen.

"She advanced, a glass in either hand. As she came the floor swayed and the walls seemed to bow together, but they did not sway her. Step by step she drew near, and when she reached my side she smiled in my face once. Then she said: 'Choose aright, dear heart. Leave the poisoned one for me.'"

"Fascinated, I stared at one glass, then at the other. Had either of her hands trembled I should have grasped at the glass it held, but not a tremor shook those icy fingers, nor did her eyes wander to the right hand or to the left. 'Adelaide,' I shrieked out, 'toss them behind you. Let us live—live!' But she only reiterated that awful word, 'Choose!' and I dare not hesitate longer lest I lose my chance to save her. Groping, I touched a glass, never knew which one—and, drawing it from her fingers, I lifted it to my mouth. Instantly her other hand rose 'I don't know which is which myself,' she said and drank. That made me drink also.

"The two glasses sent out a clicking sound as we set them back on the stand. Then we waited, looking at each other. 'Which?' her lips seemed to say. 'Which?' In another moment we knew. 'Your choice was the right one,' said she and she sank back into a chair. 'Don't leave me!' she called out, for I was about to run shrieking out into the night. 'I—I am happy now that it is all settled, but I do not want to die alone. Oh, how hot I am!' And, leaping up, she flung off her coat and went gasping about the room for air. When she sank down again it was on the lounge, and again I tried to fly for help, and again she would not let me.

"I tried to soothe her—to keep down my awful fear and soothe her. But the nearness of death had calmed her poor heart into its old love and habitual thoughtfulness. She was terrified at my position. She recalled our mother and the oath she had taken at that mother's deathbed to protect me and care for me and my brother. 'And I have failed to do either,' she cried. 'Arthur I have alienated, and you I am leaving to unknown trouble and danger.'"

"She was not to be comforted. I saw her life ebbing and could do nothing. She clung to me while she called up all her powers and made plans for me and showed me a way of escape. I was to burn the note, fling two of the glasses from the window and leave the other and the deadly vial near her hand—this before I left the room. Then I was to call up the police and say there was something wrong at the clubhouse, but I was not to give my name or ever acknowledge I was there. 'Nothing can save trouble,' she said, 'but that trouble must not come near you. Swear that you will heed my words—swear that you will do what I say.'"

"I swore. All that she asked I promised. I was almost dying, too, and had the light gone out and the rafters of the house fallen in and buried us both it would have been better. But the light burned on, and the life in her eyes faded out, and the hands grasping mine relaxed. I heard one little gasp, then a low prayer. 'Tell Arthur never—never—again to—' Then—silence."

Sobs, cries, veiled faces, then silence in the courtroom too. It was broken but by one sound—a heart-rending sigh from the prisoner. But nobody looked at him, and nobody looked at me. Every eye was on the face of this young girl whose story bore such an impress of truth and yet was so contradictory of all former evidence. What revelations were yet to follow? It would seem that she was speaking of her sister's death.

But her sister had not died that way; her sister had been strangled. Could this dainty creature, with beauty scarred and yet powerfully triumphant, be the victim of a hallucination, or did she seek to mislead justice and to conceal truth?

At a question from Mr. Moffat she spoke again, and we heard her say:

"Yes, she died that way, with her hands in mine. There was no one else by. We were quite alone."

"That settled it, and for a moment the revulsion of feeling threatened to throw the court into tumult.

"Can you fix the hour of this occurrence?" Mr. Moffat asked. "In any way can you locate the time?"

"No, for I did not move at once. I felt tied to that couch. I am very young, and I had never seen death before. When I did get up I hobbled like an old woman and almost went distracted, but came to myself as I saw the note on the floor—the note I was told to burn. Lifting it, I moved toward the fireplace, but got a fright on the way and stopped in the middle of the floor and looked back. I thought I had heard my sister speak.

"But the fancy passed as I saw how still she lay, and I went on after awhile and threw the note into the one small flame which was all that was left of the fire. I saw it caught by a draft from the door behind me and go flaming up the chimney.

"Some of my trouble seemed to go with the note, and I lifted a pillow from the window seat near by and covered her face. I must have done more. I must have covered the whole lounge with pillows and cushions, for presently my mind cleared again, and I recollected that it was something about the poison. I was to put the vial in her hand—or was I to throw it from the window? Something was to be thrown from the window—it must be the vial. But I couldn't lift the window, so, having found the vial standing on the table beside the little flask, I carried it into the closet where there was a window opening inward, and I dropped it out of that and thought I had done all. But when I came back and saw Adelaide's coat lying in a heap where she had thrown it I recalled that she had said something about this, but what I didn't know. So I lifted it and put it in the closet—why I cannot say. Then I set my mind on going home."

"But there was something to do first—something not in that room. It was to telephone the police. I seized the receiver, and when central answered I said something about the Whispering Pines and wanting help. This is all I remember about that."

"Some time afterward—I don't know when—I was stumbling down the stairs on my way out. I had gone to—to the room again for my little bag, for the keys were in it, and I dared not leave them. But I didn't stay a minute, and I cast but one glance at the lounge. What happened afterward is like a dream to me. I found the horse, the horse found the road, and some time later I reached home. As I came within sight of the house I grew suddenly strong again. The open stable door reminded me of my duty, and, driving in, I quickly unharnessed Jenny and put her away. Then I dragged the cutter into place and hung up the harness. Lastly I locked the door and carried the key with me into the house and hung it up on its usual nail in the kitchen. I had obeyed Adelaide, and now I would go to my room. That is what she would wish. But I don't know whether I did this or not. My mind was full of Adelaide till confusion came, then darkness and then a perfect blank."

She had finished; she had done as she had been asked; she had told the story of that evening as she knew it from the family dinner till her return home after midnight, and the mystery of Adelaide's death was as great as ever.

"Mr. District Attorney, the witness is yours," said Mr. Moffat.

Mr. Fox at once arose. The moment was ripe for conquest. He put his most vital question first:

"In all this interview with your sister did you remark any discoloration on her throat?"

The witness' lips opened. Surprise spoke from her every feature. "Discoloration?" she repeated. "I do not know what you mean."

"Any marks darker than the rest of her skin on her throat or neck?"

"No. Adelaide had a spotless skin. It looked like marble as she lay there. No; I saw no marks. I do not know what you allude to."

"Did you hold your sister's hands all the time she lay dying, as you thought, on the lounge?"

"Yes, yes."

"How was it when you let go of them? Where did they fall then?"

"On her breast. I laid them down softly and crossed them. I did not leave her till I had done this and closed her eyes."

"And what did you do then?"

"I went for the note to burn it."

"Miss Cumberland, in your direct examination you said that you stopped still as you crossed the floor at the time, thinking that your sister called, and that you looked back at her to see."

"Yes, sir."

"Were her hands crossed then?"

"Yes, sir; just the same."

"And afterward, when you came from the fire after waiting some little time for courage?"

"Yes, yes. There were no signs of movement. Oh, she was dead—quite dead."

"No statements, Miss Cumberland. She looked the same, and you saw no change in the position of her hands?"

"None. They were just as I left them."

"Can you say she did not clutch or grip her throat during any of this time?"

"Yes, yes. I couldn't have forgotten it if she had done that. I remember every move she made so well. She didn't do that."

"When, after telephoning, you returned to the room where your sister lay you glanced at the lounge?"

"Yes; I could not help it."

"Was it in the same condition as when you left—the pillows, I mean?"

"I—I think so. I cannot say. I only half looked. I was terrified by it."

"Can you say they had not been disturbed?"

"No. I can say nothing. But what does?"

"Only the answer, Miss Cumberland. Can you tell us how those pillows were arranged?"

"I'm afraid not. I threw them down quickly, madly just as I collected them. I only know that I put the window cushion down first. The rest fell anyhow. But they quite covered her—quite."

"Hands and face?"

"Her whole body."

"And did they cover her quite when you came back?"

"They must have—Wait—wait! I know I HER STRENGTH HAD GIVEN WAY."

"Say that, but I cannot swear that I saw any change."

"Can you swear that there was no change—that the pillows and the window cushion lay just as they did when you left the room?"

"No."

At the next moment she was in Dr. Carpenter's arms. Her strength had given way for the time, and the court was hastily adjourned to give her opportunity for rest and recuperation.

OHIO LOSES ITS STRONGEST CASE

Representative Nye Acquitted of Bribery Charge.

FACES OTHER INDICTMENTS

These, However, Are Not Regarded as Strong Cases as the One on Which the Jury Returned an Acquittal—Ohio Legislature Has Adjourned Without Providing Anything For the Pay of Burns Detectives.

Columbus, O., June 2.—When Representative Geo. R. Nye of Pike county was acquitted by a jury of soliciting a $500 bribe from the state supervisor of public printing, the state lost the first of the legislative bribery cases. Dr. Nye faces three other indictments. The case which the state lost was considered its strongest. The other cases depend upon the evidence of Burns detectives and their characters have been raked over and their previous work delved into by detectives employed by the indicted solons.

Prosecutor Turner announced that he would go ahead with the other legislative bribery cases. The trial of Representative Evans of Stark county, charged with soliciting a bribe, will begin Monday and the others will follow his conclusion.

When Dr. Nye was acquitted the courtroom was moved to tears over the demonstration made by his mother and other relatives and friends. He was warmly embraced and kissed by his mother, and friends were cordial in their congratulations.

The acquittal came within an hour after the legislature adjourned. It was scheduled to adjourn twenty-four hours before, but there was considerable delay, particularly over an appropriation of $7,500 in the sundry bill as a contribution from the state to Franklin county for graft trials and probing expenses. Reactionary senators did not know of the presence of this item until the legislature recessed at 10 o'clock Wednesday night. Immediately they tried to have the session resumed, but failed.

Yesterday they had the house return the bill and then threatened to kill it, although it carried many important items, including an amount for a constitutional convention. A conference commission finally was provided and the bill got through with an allowance of $5,000 for the grand jury. A proviso was attached which will make it impossible for any of this to go to the detectives. It must be spent for the investigation from the time Attorney General Hogan took charge.

EDISON HOPEFUL

"Wizard" Believes He Has at Last Perfected Storage Battery.

New York, June 2.—Thomas A. Edison thinks he has now invented the storage battery that will overcome the three main objections to the one now in use—weight, bulk and length of time required to charge them. The new battery that he has been working on for months is so light that one large enough to run a butcher wagon can be put into a suitcase. It can be charged in four or five minutes, he says.

MANAGUA IS GUARDED AGAINST REBELLION

Martial Law Prevails in Nicaragua's Capital.

Managua, Nicaragua, June 2.—The explosion in the fortress La Loma, which killed and wounded about 120 of the soldiers comprising the garrison, it is officially announced, was the outcome of a plot by the Liberals, having for its object the destruction of President Adolfo Diaz and other government officials. It was asserted that a conspiracy was on foot to start another revolution in the interests of President Estrada, but the claim is made in government circles that the movement is not far-reaching. Wholesale arrests of prominent Liberals have been made and Managua is practically under martial law. Infantry and cavalry are patrolling the streets and the populace is keeping within doors to a considerable degree.

Farmer's Wife Fell in Front of Field Roller and Was Crushed.

Newcastle, Ind., June 2.—Mrs. Maggie Coon, aged forty, wife of Luther Coon, a farmer ten miles west of here, was crushed to death under a heavy field roller. Mrs. Coon was driving a team of horses and riding on the roller in a cornfield, when the horses became frightened and ran away. She was thrown in front of the roller and it passed over her body, badly crushing it. Mr. Coon returned to the field to find the horses running about and the body of his wife crushed into the soft earth. The husband and one child survive.

LORIMER PROBE TO BE RENEWED

Senate Decides On Another Investigation.

EVERY SENATOR FAVORED IT

There Was a Difference of Opinion, However, Regarding the Manner of Naming the Committee to Apply Probe, and on This Point Senator La Follette Lost Out to Minority Leader Martin of Virginia.

Washington, June 2.—By a vote of 48 to 20 the senate has ordered a second investigation of the Lorimer case. The resolution offered by Senator Martin of Virginia as an amendment to Senator La Follette's resolution was adopted. The twenty votes were supplied by thirteen insurgent Republicans, one regular—Perkins of California—and six Democrats. Under the Martin resolution the second investigation will be conducted by the committee on privileges and elections. This committee will recommend a senate committee of eight of its members, subject to ratification by the senate. Senator La Follette's resolution authorized a select committee of five to be elected by the senate. Every senator favored a reinvestigation, the issue being as to the form of the committee.

The senate adopted a concurrent resolution offered by Senator Hitchcock of Nebraska, calling on the secretary of war for full information as to orders recently issued concentrating staff officers at division headquarters at New York, Chicago and San Francisco, and withdrawing them from various department headquarters.

Senator Bourne of Oregon introduced a resolution calling on the postmaster general for information regarding certain alleged economies in the postal service and as to the reorganization and an estimate as to cost of parcels post.

A resolution directing the attorney general to proceed in a criminal action against individual defendants in the Standard Oil and tobacco trust cases was introduced by Senator Pomerene.

MADERO STARTS

Successful Revolutionist Begins Triumphant Trip to Mexico City.

El Paso, Tex., June 2.—Francisco I. Madero has put aside all business cares. He has refused to read mail addressed to the provisional president of Mexico, forwarding it on to President De La Barra, declaring that De La Barra was the only man who could lay claim to that title. Madero and his party left today for Eagle Pass, Tex., where they will cross into Mexico on Saturday and begin their triumphant trip to the national capital.

Miguel Ahumada has resigned as governor of Chihuahua and the legislature will today declare the election of Abraham Gonzales, Madero's appointee. The federal troops in Chihuahua have been withdrawn to Mexico City and the insurgents will march in with Gonzales at their head and induct him into office. Gonzales is a cattle man and a graduate of Notre Dame university of Indiana. Diaz confiscated his property at the outbreak of the war.

It is stated that no allowances will be made to General Luis Terrazas, owner of one-third of Chihuahua, for anything that has been taken from him.
